

COMMUNISM, THE WOMEN'S LIBERATION STRUGGLE, AND A CRITIQUE OF BOURGEOIS FEMINISM

Nuova Egemonia

Prairie Fire Publishing

This work is licensed under a Creative Commons Attribution 4.0 International License (CC BY 4.0), allowing anyone to share, adapt, and build upon this work for any purpose, even commercially, as long as appropriate credit is given to the original creator.

© Prairie Fire Publishing, 2025

<https://prairiefirepublishing.com/>

1st Edition

978-1-300-45926-2

Unofficial translation by
Cristovao Carvalho and Jün Lumbre

Cover artwork by Aroa De Cambio

Nuova Egemonia

TABLE OF CONTENTS

I. The Primitive Communist Mode of Production

Introduction	17
Characteristics of Primitive Communism	18
The Contradictions of Primitive Communism	22
Historical Materialism on the Origins of Women's Oppression	26
Root Causes of the Dissolution of Primitive Communism	28

II. Women and Communist Productivity

Communist Productivity	33
The Link Uniting Women with the Struggle for Communism	35
Women's Liberation as a Struggle for "Communist Productivity"	38
Communist Distribution of the Products of Labor and Private Distribution	41
Emergence of Private Property and the Dissolution of Communist Society	43
Friedrich Engels on the Origins of Private Property	45

III. Stages and Lines of Development of the Primitive Communist Mode of Production

Three Stages of Primitive Communism	49
Different Lines of Development of Primitive Communism	51
The Struggle Against Liberal Theories on Primitive Communism and the Origin of the State	53
In Summary: The Theoretical Struggle Against Right-Wing and "Left-Wing" Liberal Theories	56

IV. On the Theory of the Asiatic Mode of Production

The Dissolution of Primitive Communism in Asia	61
--	----

For a Critique of the Theory of the Asiatic Mode of Production	65
The Theses of José Carlos Mariátegui and Alberto Passos Guimaraes: A Brief Note on Communist Communities in Latin America	67
Summary Note on the Forms of Dissolution of Communist Communities	73
Community Survivals in the Modes of Production Successive to Communism	75

V. Emergence of Private Property and the Slave Mode of Production

Marx: Historical Method and Logical Method	81
The Simple Exchange Form	83
The Formation of Private Property	85
The Establishment of the Slave Mode of Production	88
Private Property and the Origin of Women's Oppression	90

VI. The Birth of the Patriarchal Family

The Patriarchal Family and the Slave Mode of Production	95
The Feudal Mode of Production and the Transformation of the Patriarchal Family	100
Forms of Property, Family, and the Oppression of Women	103
The Two Lines of Development of the Family Institution	107

VII. Historical Materialism as the Basis for the Study of Women's History

The Importance of Historical Materialism	111
Historical Materialism and the History of Women	112
Historical Materialism as a Philosophy "Sufficient Unto Itself"	114

VIII. The Monogamous Family and the Capitalist Dissolution of the Social Character of Domestic Economy

The Monogamous Family	119
Social Characteristics of the Monogamous Family	121
The Institution of Inheritance and the “Monogamous Family”	125
The Domestic Economy and the “Monogamous Family” of the Popular Masses	127
The Domestic Economy and the Monogamous Family of the Bourgeoisie	131
The Contradictions Between Men and Women in the Family of the Popular Masses as a Contradiction Within the People	134
For a Synthesis: The Role of the “Monogamous Family” in Different Social Classes	136
The Fetishistic Naturalization of Domestic Work	140
Psychoanalysis as a Reflection of the Fetishistic Form of Relationships in the Monogamous Family	142

IX. Domestic Economy and the Marxist Theory of Reproduction of Labor-Power

Marx’s Theory of the Value of Labor-Power and Wages	147
The Feminist Theory of Capitalist Employment, 24 Hours a Day, of the Psycho-Physical Energies of the Wage Laborer	155
The Interest of the Individual Worker in the Rational Consumption of Commodities Related to the Value of Their Labor-Power	158
The Fantastical Theory of Individual Consumption of Commodities as “Social Labor”	161
Why Doesn’t Marx Speak About the Work of Proletarian Women?	163
Wages, Children, and the Formation of the New Labor Force	165
The Proletarian Family and “Domestic Economy”	167
Domestic Economy: The Individual Worker and the Family Unit	172

The Struggle Against Patriarchalism and Machismo Within the Family of the Popular Masses	174
Toward a New Communist Productivity	176
The Great Proletarian Cultural Revolution: The Highest Moment in the History of the Struggle for Women's Liberation	178

X. Production and Reproduction in the Theory of Worker Feminism by Silvia Federici

"Worker Feminists" and the Thesis of Domestic Labor as a Site of Capitalist Exploitation	183
Identity and Distinction Between "Worker Feminism" and "Proletarian Feminism"	185
Silvia Federici and the Theses on Productive Labor in "Worker Feminism"	187
The "Worker Feminist" Theory of the Reproduction of the Labor Force Within the Nuclear Family	192
Silvia Federici and the Thesis of the Identity Between Value and Use-Value	196

XI. The Semi-Workerist Theories of Proletarian Feminism

Proletarian Feminism in Italy	201
Analogies and Differences Between the Theory of Silvia Federici and that of Proletarian Feminism	202
The Political Economy of Proletarian Feminism	205
The Enigma of "The Value of Reproduction as Part of Production"	207
The Fantastical Theory of "Domestic Economy" as a "Means of Production"	209
The Revolutionary Discovery of Proletarian Feminism: Paid Domestic Labor by the Capitalist	211
The Rose is an Elephant	213
The Thesis of the "Proletarian Feminists" on the Political Economy of Use-Values	216

An Unfortunate Salaried Worker Faces Proletarian Feminism	222
The Falsification of Chapter 21 of Capital by Proletarian Feminism	227
Proletarian Feminism and the Economist Deviation	234
On the Distortion of José Carlos Mariátegui's Thought by Proletarian Feminism	237

XII. Alexandra Kollontai's "Marxist Feminism"

A Brief Note on Alexandra Kollontai	245
Kollontai: Positivist Sociologism and Subjective Idealism	247
Kollontai Between "Workers' Opposition" and Proletkult	249
The Idealist Ethics of Kollontai	251
The Idealistic-Subjective Aesthetics of Kollontai	256
The Fetishization of Interpersonal Relationships in Kollontai's Feminist Aesthetics	258
On the Importance and Relevance of the Critique of Kollontai's "Marxist Feminism"	260

XIII. The Feminist Movement in 1970s Italy

The Unmanageable Oxymorons of "Marxist Feminism"	265
Formation and Crisis of an Idealistic Vision of the Conception of Militant Ethics	269
The '70s and the Absent Response to the Need for the Liberation Struggle of Communist Militants and Women of the Popular Masses	272
Separatist Feminism as a Mystifying and Illusory Way of Managing the Man-Woman Contradiction	275
For a Dialectical and Materialist Approach to the Question of Singularity	277
Class Relations and "Class Identifications"	281
The Fetishist Appearance of Male-Female Relations	285
"Singularity" as a Terrain of Struggle Between Different Philosophies and Various Conceptions of Logic	287
Language, Class Struggle, and Critique of Feminism	290

XIV. Feminism in the Crisis of the Revolutionary Groups of the '70s: Correct Demands and Wrong Responses

Feminism as a Product of the Political and Ideological Crisis of the Revolutionary Groups	295
The Emergence of Feminism: A Regressive Response to a Just Problem	298
The Thesis of the Necessity of the "Destruction of the Family"	300
The Cynicism of Disenchantment as the Appearance of the Crisis of the "Erotic Ethics of the Revolution"	302
Contradiction Between Man and Woman and Class Contradiction	304
The Aristocratic and Nihilistic Ethics	306
Form and Content: The Fetishist Autonomization of Ethics and Erotic Aesthetics in 1970s Feminism	309
The Situation in the Present: Movementism and Post-Modern Feminism	312
Post-Colonial Feminism	316
The Youth and the Women's Question	320
Conclusions	322

I.

The Primitive Communist Mode of Production